Juneau Community Foundation awards $2.1 million to local social service nonprofits

CBJ contributes Social Service Funds and Utility Waivers

The Juneau Community Foundation has awarded $2,112,826 in grants to 25 local nonprofit organizations following several months of a collaborative effort to identify priority social service needs and gaps, interview existing grantees, and review applications. Since 2015, the Juneau Hope/CBJ Social Service Grant process has provided over $12.5M in grants to support areas of greatest need.

Funding comes from the Juneau Community Foundation's Hope Endowment Fund ($1,180,911) and the City & Borough of Juneau's Social Service Funds ($931,915). In addition, the CBJ Utility Waiver Program is providing $47,500 in utility waivers to nonprofits that house people as part of their mission.

These grants help Juneau's most vulnerable residents, by increasing support for nonprofit service providers supporting those who are homeless and food insecure; people with substance abuse disorders, and mental and physical health issues; victims of domestic violence; suicide prevention; and, care for senior citizens and Juneau's hospice program. These funds also support adult education and income stability.

Grant awards were determined based on applications, local nonprofit social service priorities, the Foundation's Professional Advisory Committee, and the board of the Foundation. This year besides having a process that encouraged coordination and collaboration among social service programs, committee members conducted interviews with several organizations that have received grants from these funds for over four years.

"We listened to our local providers, who have been working extremely hard during the pandemic, and provided a streamlined application process that greatly reduced the amount of work many had to do to receive this year's grant," stated Amy Skilbred, Executive Director. "We reserved enough funds to also address some new project proposals, through the lengthier application process."

The Juneau Hope Endowment Fund was established in 2014 and is managed by the Juneau Community Foundation to provide social service grants on an annual basis. The Foundation provides a combined grant process that includes CBJ Social Service Grants. Uniting these funding sources with others in our community provides one grant process to support people living in Juneau.
